THE LEGACY RETURNS

M

att Stokes, or 'Movement' on stage has released a new single which has blown away his fans and critics all over the world.

Originally born in Cardiff, Matt moved to the rural town of Clee Hill in South Shropshire when he was seven. He told Music Meltdown 'Cardiff is where my sole is, Clee Hill is where my heart is'. Matt first found his singing voice at primary school when he was asked to play the angel Gabriel in a Christmas Nativity play. From that day on, every morning he would practice what he called 'angel notes', named after his casting in his school's Christmas play. He made his first album at the age of 12. This was more of a 'personal' album for his and his family's listening as two weeks after it was published it was taken off the market. Six years later, Matt is back and 'ready to attack'.

His latest single, called 'Prodigy' is based on his past failures and how time fixes every issue. He says that it was inspired by his failure mentioned in the previous paragraph. It seems that the subject that the song is based on is true even for himself. This personal link is what he called 'magical' and 'karma from being such a nice person.' The song was first played on Capital FM Birmingham, Matt's local radio station and the only one he listens to. The song, according to radio analytics, is the most listened to song on this Franky aging medium. This might be considered as unsuccessful. These opinions are incorrect as on the popular music streaming website, Spotify, the song is in the top ten most listened to last month.
